Dr. Manning Says Rented Seat Brings Note of Discrimination.

In the course of his sermon at old Tringty yesterday the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning spoke at some length regarding the system of rented pews, which still exists in several of Trinity's nine churches. It was clear from his remarks that he is opposed to the present system of rented pews and would be glad to see a system of free sittings prevail in all of the churches of

Dr. Manning said, in part:

Precedence Accorded to Them by ate the action of any mere Pignatelli in ap-Non-Catholic Foreign Courts.

Copywright, 1912, by the Brentwood Company.) Some confusion appears to exist with regard to the exact position of the four American cardinals on the official table of ecedence at Washington and in the various states of the Union. This was brought o light by the attitude of the Governor of Massachusetts at the St. Patrick's Day dinner, at which the President of the United States was present. Cardinals have not heretofore figured on the official tables of recedence either of the federal governnent or of the various states, possibly because until last Christmas there has never been more than one at a time, and also because it was desired to avoid appearing to discriminate officially in favor of one creed at the expense of another. Now, however, a different situation has arisen, and as there is little or no official precedent in this country for the precedence of cardinals, it may be well to mention how the problems in this connection are solved abroad, especially in England, where the state Church is Protestant, and in Scotland, where the official Church is Presbyterian. In the first place, it is necessary to call attention to the fact that the point church at the expense of another cannot be said to apply in the case of cardinals. They are something besides ministers of the Gospel and ecclesiastics. Indeed, a cardinal is not necessarily a priest, but he is from a purely secular point of view a very great this church for all who nost careful to do this. It personage, who is regarded and treat the personage, who is regarded and treat the committee in the least. When the committee in the least. When the committee in the least when the committee in the least. When the committee in the least when the committee in the least. When the committee in the least when the committee in the committ personage, who is regarded and treated everywhere abroad not as a dignitary of principle of the matter in the least. When all has been said for rented pews that can be said, as to their keeping families together, and so forth, it remains true that the system cannot be reconciled with our look's wish and purpose for His Church, and we know in our hearts that this is so. The rented seat brings into the house of God a note of discrimination and privilege which has no place there.

Thus in England the Archbishop of Canterbury, as the primate of the state Church, has precedence over every other dignitary of the realm, enjoying the "pas" of the Lord High Chancellor, of the Fremier, of the Lord High Constable, of the Earl Marshal and ef all the other non-royal dukes. But he in his turn is obliged to make way for the foreign ambassadors, as non-royal epresentatives of foreign sovereigns, and he ambassadors in turn make way for any and every cardinal, the latter having from time immemorial enjoyed the social and official status of a prince of the blood.

Of course, as mere Catholic Archbishop of Westminster the Most Rev. Dr. Bourne has to walk in the rear of the Archbishop of Canterbury, but as cardinal he now comes a long way ahead of him, not in his quality as a great dignitary of the Church. but in his quality as prince of the blood. The table of precedence in England, dating from the Reformation, is statutory, and the names of cardinals do not figure thereon. But when King Edward inaugurated the present arrangement, which has since been followed by Emperor William, by the Czar and by every other non-Cathoic ruler of Europe, no word was raised in protest, it being recognized that the sovereign has a perfect right to designate the exact status of a foreign prince of the blood at his court, and that when he does this, in cordance with the rules of international nity and old-established usage, no one is malified to gainsay him.

Under the circumstances it must be borne in mind that even though Cardinals Farley, O'Connell and Gibbons are at heart patritic Americans and members of an American hierarchy, yet they are as cardinals foreign princes of the blood, to whom the United States, as one of the great powers of the world, is under an obligation to concede the same honors that they receive abroad. Thus, were Cardinal Farley to Binghamton, N. Y., March 24.—A double visit an American man-of-war he would funeral was held in the village of Lisle be entitled to the salutes and to the naval yesterday, when Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton honors reserved for a foreign royal person-Edwards, father and mother of Street age, and at any official entertainments at Cleaning Commissioner William H. Prince Ludovico Pignatelli d'Aragona. To what extent Prince Ludovico Pigna-telli d'Aragona is personally responsible for PICTURES OF MAINE'S BURIAL all the foolish and manifestly mendacious stories that have been circulated about him ever since he came to this country last summer to seek in marriage an American helress it is difficult to say. If it is to his friends that he is indebted for the fairy tales concerning him then I can only say that he is exceedingly unfortunate in the choice of his acquaintances. The last story, published recently, is the

if Don Ludovico has sailed for Europe it is in order to obtain the permission of King Alfonso of Spain to contract a marriage with Miss Mary Doke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin N. Duke, of Fifth avenue, it being intimuted that that monarch is taking a very active interest in the affair and does not view what he is said to re the docks, where the remains of sixty-two gard as the impending "mésalliance" with approval. Of course, this palpably false story has been circulated with the object of confirming the reports diligently circulated by the friends of the prince during the first few months of his stay in this ountry to the effect that he is a consin of King Alfonso and a relative of the royal family, sharing with them the title of d'Aragon, since Alfonso XIII is not only King of Spain, but also of Castlle and of Aragon, and all the members of his house are infants of Spain, Castile and Aragon. Now, in my letter in these columns on March 6 I declared in reply to inquiries that Prince Ludovico Pignatelli d'Aragona was, although of Spanish birth, not a Spanish noble, and that he did not belong to the Spanish aristocracy; moreover, that he had never been admitted to the Spanish Grandezza, to which genealogical qualifications of a rather exacting character and much blue blood, undiluted by any plebeian strain, are indispensable, though not titles, for there are a number of grandees belonging to the oldest Spanish aristocracy who have no titles of nobility and have never

> I also added that in permitting his friends to style him "Prince Pignatelli d'Aragon" and sometimes "Prince d'Aragon" Don Ludovico was rendering himself party to a deception, since he had no right whatsoever to the royal Spanish name of the Kingdom of Aragon, but had merely a right to the Sicilian name of d'Aragona, which is that of an impoverished townlet performance for charity will assemble on of Sicily, with which the Pignatellis were the stage at Wallack's Theatre, where, on formerly connected. Benjamin Duke, who is far too sound an American business man not to investigate thoroughly the fiscal, moral and social standing of any suitor for his daughter's hand before giving his sanction to a mar-riage, will do well to inquire whether Don Ludovico has any actual right to the designation of "prince." In order to have any right to bear the title as a Spanish citizen he must previously obtain a patent to that effect from the Royal Department of Heraldry at Madrid, which is only granted in the form of a patent bearing the sign manual of the sovereign in the event that the claim thereto by right of primogeniture in the male line is firmly established, or else he must obtain a similar document bearing the signature of the King of Italy from sulta Heraldica, at Rome. Without either of these he cannot use the title in either Spain or Italy, the two countries with which his family has any associations, guaranteed by the crown of Spain or of Italy. Certain branches of the Pignatellis. raised about discrimination in favor of one but not all, have obtained the right from the Consulta Heraldica, at Rome, and there is no mention made of that branch to which Don Ludovico belongs as having obright even to the title of prince.

He is only moderately well off, for his father, Don Luigi, has little or nothing, while his mother is equally badly off. She is an Englishwoman of the name of Cavenof Devonshire. MUSIC

THE CONCERTS OF A SUNDAY

End of the Symphony Society's Series-Mme. Gadski in Charity-A Debussy Recital.

This season's concerts of the Symphony Society came to an end yesterday afternoon at the Century Theatre. Mr. Walter Damrosch, having performed the "Eroica" symphony last Friday afternoon, cor tinued the custom which he has followed as a rule throughout the season and repeated it. But in place of the excerpts from the "Meistersinger" which had figured on the programme of last Sunday as well as last Friday, he gave Haydn's "Surprise" symphony. To jaded minds there was much refreshment in this music, despite, or, perhaps, because of its gracious melodiousness and sweet simthe State Department known as the Con- plicity-which to the knowing conceals so much learning and technical skill. Elegant as simplicity, And warm as ecstasy.

Mr. Damrosch has led his hearers as far along the modern paths this season as any would recognize the title unless it were of his fellows, and with an obvious sincerity of purpose which it is a pleasure as well as a duty-to recognize; but he was none the less sincere and reverential in giving us the old music, without frills o furbelows, and for this he deserves as fuli a measure of gratitude. He played the Beethoven symphony also with obvious aftained it. In that event, he would have no fection, and his band responded nobly; but we could have wished a little less of restlessness, a little more of strong continent ment, the free fantasia and coda of which still seems as great a miracle of music fish, a thirtieth cousin (about) of the Duke now as it must have seemed to minds capable of comprehending it when it disclosed the full blown flower of romanticism to a blinking world over a century ago. Mr. Winthrop Amer's Little Theatre, in West 44th street, was the scene yesterday afternoon of a Debussy recital by Mrs. Henry Russell, the wife of the director of writing their letters are particularly care- the Boston Opera Company, and the small audience present, an audience whose size was undoubtedly largely due to the fact that the tickets had been misprinted, setting the time of the recital for 2:30 o'clock in stead of for 4 o'clock, spent an hour of un usual enjoyment. The little playhouse, a very little gem in itself, might have in intiof these letters, to prevent many a so-called many of size and delicacy of tint originated international alliance which would certainly in the brain of Claude Debussy himself, and have proved unfortunate by urging the its setting yesterday—the stage draped in parents of the girl or the relatives of a gray and with two vases of carnations on woman, if a widow, to make a thorough either side of the piano-would surely have delighted the composer's heart.

As for Mrs. Russell berself, though her voice was a small and in tone not alto gether a pleasing one, her delicacy of treat ment, her exquisite sense of phrase, her admirable diction, her perfect intonation conclude this letter by urging upon Mr. were a delight, and all who enjoy the pallid Benjamin Duke, before giving his consent art of the French impressionist were surely made happy by her offerings. Dr. Elmer Ellsworth Brown, Chancellor of ago. President Roosevelt accepted his New York University, asks the university resignation because of Captain Wynne's New York University, asks the university council for $4,750,000 this year to enable him successfully to carry on the work in which the university is already engaged. His first annual report will be issued this week, and advance sheets were given out yesterday. The chancellor's estimate has been made after a close study of the university and a comparison of its tasks and resources with other institutions. Of the total amount for which he asks, $3,000,000 is for "the endowment of teaching and research," which he apportions among the several schools as follows: To the College of Arts and Purp Science, $600,000; to the graduate school, $300,000; to the graduate school school, $300,000; to the graduate school school school to the graduate school school to the graduate school school to the graduate school school to t the university is already engaged. The rest of the amount asked for ($600,000) he desires for immediate purchases It is necessary to have this total of $4.-70,000 at an early date, says the chancellor, in order that the university may success fully carry on the work in which it is already engaged. Concerning future needs and requirements, Dr. Brown says: "Looking further into the future, one would not be justified in estimating the needs of the stitution within the next ten or twelve years at less than $25,000,000 to $30,000,000.

"Among the needs of the near future which I have not mentioned are a hall of philosophy and a gymnasium at University Heights, dormitories at Washington Square, Young Men's Christian Association buildngs both at University Heights and downtown, increased provision for the law library and for courses in legal practice endowment for collegiate instruction at Washington Square, and a building for the Veterinary College." That a general campaign for funds will be begun in the near future is indicated by the closing paragraph of the report: "The securing of funds to meet these needs will necessarily occupy a foremost place in the activity of the university council from this time on till that end is attained. At the same time, a general study of the situation and of the resources of the university is going forward in the chancellor's office covering the organization of the institution, the teaching body, its scholastic standards, its present and probable source of revenue, its student body and alumni and the possibility of a closer adjustment to the needs which it seems destined to serve." =
